Instructions for using Coco Bedding

To get the best results from our Coco Bedding, the following steps are recommended.

Step-1 Stall Preparation

Strip the stall of old bedding. If you leave any sawdust, pellets or shavings in the stall, they will continue to retain the urine odor and reduce the absorbency of the new bedding. Let the stall dry.

Step-2 Applying our Coco Bedding

Bring four bales of Coco Bedding to the stall. Cut the wrappers and dump the contents directly on the floor.

Spread Coco Bedding evenly in the stall. Do not wet it. That's it. You are done.

Step-3 Daily Maintenance

To clean the stall, pick up the piles of manure, which are easily visible. Determine where your horse urinates (geldings, usually at the center of the stall; mares, could be anywhere!) and rake a little extra Coco Bedding on to that spot. It will absorb the urine and odor. Don't throw out the bedding unless it is badly soiled. Wet areas will have no odor.

Step-4 Bedding disposal

The used bedding can also be composted. It will break down much faster than other bedding materials. It is also an excellent soil amendment fully loaded with nutrients. You may get up to 2-months use from our Coco Bedding without adding any fresh bedding.

Additional benefits

Hair coat: Trace amounts of natural oils in the bedding will make your horse's coat silky. It also cuts down on manure stains.

Hoof health: The coir bedding will not compact in your horses' hooves. It is easy to clean out, and it leaves the foot dry.

Flies: We don't know about other insects, but flies hate this stuff! No more flies in your stall.

Dust: There is no dust flying around the stall. Great for horses with respiratory problems.
